

I not a failure and I never failed before. I always do my best but on this one I really don't know what went wrong. The only thing that affected my performance was my personal life. During my exam writing I lost my grandmother and then afterwards lost my aunt who was everything to me. I am where I am because of her. I really do not know life would be without her, but I hope next time things will work out and I do well.

→ I got 59% because I was panicking when I was studying and even on the day of the test.

I found it hard for me to grasp a lot of information but next time I would do better.

Why I didn't perform as well as I'd like. ~~600~~

- I found 'Core Pathology' too complicated as a study material text book. I feel I could not properly understand the bulky paragraphs, whereas when I looked at 'Pathology Illustrated', I understood the illustrations much better and I feel this book helped me the most in the exam.

- We were given a letter during striking saying exams start on 24 May, and when we got to tech, they were actually on 17 May → Not enough time!!

- Had assignments due just before + after exams
